Homeschooled till Class 10, K'vli teen bags 93.33% in HSC

Mumbai: Certified positive psychologist, freelance writer, resume builder, social media and fitness trainer Shahaan Pardiwala who scored 93.33% in arts wears many hats.

Shahaan (18), who has homeschooled from grade 2 till his SSC and then attended Mithibai College for two years, will once again go back to the self-study mode. The teenager has achieved a lot more than many of his peers while pursuing his education and passion. Time and the possibility to do a lot more than what the compartmentalised education system offers, will now take Shahaan back to earning his next degree through correspondence.

"The first week was very awkward. I cursed myself for attending college. After several years of homeschooling, when my parents suggested I join a formal college, I felt terrible. But in no time, I started making friends and enjoyed college life," said Pardiwala. While the two campus years came with their structure and "rigidity", he realised he wanted the freedom to do what he enjoyed and develop it further.

Shahaan is drawing up his own NEP (National Education Policy), picking courses and working while constantly learning and upgrading his skills. "We never followed a book or a board. Our son learned from everywhere," said his father Nozzer Pardiwala, a resident of Kandivli, who with his wife Sonali regularly shares their experiences on homeschooling for other parents. "Homeschooling allows children to discover themselves. It is for everyone," said Pardiwala. — Hemali Chhappia
